This indicates the possibility that Romans were the first Europeans who stepped into America. But some researchers claim that if Romans had truly come to America, a lot of proofs should have been found other than the coin(s).

This road network was so well designed that there appeared no better one for hundred years. It was not until the 19th century when the modern transportation system made progress that the time for travels between main cities in Europe began to be shortened.